

Business Intelligence

...is more than just reporting.

The market situation

The globalization of markets forces companies to be present everywhere. Information has to be internally and externally available for customers, suppliers and - in some cases - local authorities as well, anytime and anywhere in perfect quality of data. The range, in which this has to be achieved, is one of the most important factors determining the future position of your company in the competition for markets, customers and employees. This is why many companies already benefit from the use of rapidly progressing information technologies.

With our Business Intelligence solutions you can make the vast potential of professional information technologies accessible for your company.

Our customers benefit from our 100.000 working days experience with international SAP introduction and integration.

abat supports you from the very start with the technical realisation as well as with the economical assignment of your key figures and the choice of the needed processes and data.

The task

For fast and, above all, right decisions, companies need a homogenous database of which you can easily and results-oriented retrieve and display the required data. In the range of your standard software solutions the SAP® AG provides you with a Business Intelligence solution: Here, all your relevant data will be united results-oriented and can be obtained via a user-friendly interface – anytime and anywhere.

Through embedding into the SAP® Business Suite and the option to implement information from Non-SAP® systems without problem, all your important data will be joined in one system and will therefore be available all over your company. The most important component for this is the right choice of individual, decisive control factors. Only through this economical decision process will you gain a data source which really supports you in your decisions – and which will accompany you step by step into the future.

The offer

With our team of experienced consultants we stand for a holistic, economical and realisation-oriented approach in consulting: Our proposals include your business environment from the very beginning, making sure that following divergences can be avoided. This means for you: Less costs and less time exposure. Business Intelligence solutions are supposed to make operational procedures transparent and in this way base your decisions on fail-safe and reliable information.

From the start our solutions take the connections of the existing IT-structures into consideration. This way company IT-borders vanish and you exploit new worlds of information gathering, quality and distribution for your company.

When the task of finding best possible ways to achieve specific objective targets regarding business intelligence solutions is at hand, taking individual factors into account plays a key role – standardised methods of implementation won't help you with achieving your objective. Based on our experience and in cooperation with you, we take the best components of several established methods and create a new, individual, task- and project related method – as individual as your company. This way we implement – together – the foundation for a time- and budget-oriented development of an innovative and tailored peak solution.

We guarantee you committed performance of the tasks delivered by you, whereas we act results-oriented and economically – i.e. we support you with a project management which keeps an eye on set goals regarding time and content, which is tailored for your company and is reconciled with the persons responsible for the corresponding areas. This is our promise to you.

abat competently supports you in the development and realisation of your sophisticated BI-systems – from top to bottom. Starting with the individual working out of the most important key figures and control factors, to a “fitness check” of your information sources and the technical realisation in detail. On that account we focus on cooperation with your own departments and your IT-domain.

We know the risks and factors of success of BI-projects – benefit from our extensive experience, use your chances, define and realise your individual information management in partnership with us – therewith our know-how becomes your strength.
